What we're working on...

We finished out marking period two with our landscape triptychs. The scholars worked really hard on these and I'm proud of their tenacity in working through a long and difficult project!

Following the landscape triptychs were a short, but promising to be awesome, scratchboard project! We've been talking about how to create texture and value by just using lines on scratchboard, a black coated paper that you scratch at to make lighter. The scholars are making animal pictures and they're coming out SUPER cool. We'll be finishing these up before break, and then when we come back we'll start a unit on value and a gridded portrait project!
